This course covers econometric methods for linear panel data models. The main focus is on estimation and specification tests for dynamic models, in the context of panels with large N and small T.

The most comprehensive textbook for this course is:

Other textbook treatments include:

The main material is also covered in:

Other references include:

